The Apostle Paul was one of the most influential figures in the history of Christianity. His missionary journeys spread the Gospel throughout the Roman Empire, and his writings have shaped Christian theology for centuries.

One of Paul's most important journeys was his trip to Spain. He wrote about his plans to visit Spain in his letter to the Romans, and it is believed that he actually made the journey around 60 AD.

Paul's journey to Spain was a significant event in the history of Christianity. It marked the first time that the Gospel had been preached in the Iberian Peninsula, and it led to the establishment of a number of churches in Spain.

Today, there are many places in Spain that are associated with Paul's journey. These places include the city of Tarragona, where Paul is believed to have landed, and the city of Cordoba, where he is believed to have preached.

In this article, we will explore some of the steps of the Apostle Paul in Spain. We will visit the places where he preached and the churches that he established. We will also learn about the impact that Paul's journey had on the spread of Christianity in Spain.

Tarragona

Tarragona is a city on the Mediterranean coast of Spain. It is believed that Paul landed in Tarragona around 60 AD. The city was a major port at the time, and it was a likely destination for Paul, who was traveling from Rome.

There is no specific evidence that Paul preached in Tarragona, but it is possible that he did. The city was home to a large Jewish community, and Paul would have been eager to share the Gospel with them.

Today, there is a small church in Tarragona that is dedicated to Paul. The church is located on the site of a Roman temple, and it is believed that Paul may have preached on this site.

Cordoba

Cordoba is a city in southern Spain. It is believed that Paul preached in Cordoba around 60 AD. The city was a major center of Roman culture at the time, and it was a likely destination for Paul, who was eager to spread the Gospel to the major cities of the empire.

There is some evidence that Paul preached in Cordoba. The Acts of the Apostles records that Paul preached in a synagogue in a city called "Corduba." It is possible that this city was Cordoba, Spain.

Today, there is a large church in Cordoba that is dedicated to Paul. The church is located on the site of a Roman temple, and it is believed that Paul may have preached on this site.

Other Places

In addition to Tarragona and Cordoba, there are a number of other places in Spain that are associated with Paul's journey. These places include:

- Barcelona: Paul is believed to have passed through Barcelona on his way to Spain.
